

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: Dr. Revilo Pendleton Oliver, Professor of the Classics at the University of Illinois for 32 years, is a scholar of international distinction who has written articles in four languages for the most prestigious academic publications in the United States and Europe.

During World War II, Dr. Oliver was Director of Research in a highly secret agency of the War Department, and was cited for outstanding service to his country.

One of the very few academicians who has been outspoken in his opposition to the progressive defacement of our civilization, Dr. Oliver has long insisted that the fate of his countrymen hangs on their willingness to subordinate their doctrinal differences to the tough but idealistic solidarity which is the prerequisite of a Majority resurgence.

SOME QUOTABLE QUOTES FROM AMERICA'S DECLINE:

On the 18th Amendment (Prohibition): "Very few Americans were sufficiently sane to perceive that they had repudiated the American conception of government and had replaced it with the legal principle of the 'dictatorship of the proletariat,' which was the theoretical justification of the Jews' revolution in Russia."

On Race: "We must further understand that all races naturally regard themselves as superior to all others. We think Congoids unintelligent, but they feel only contempt for a race so stupid or craven that it fawns on them, gives them votes, lavishly subsidizes them with its own earnings, and even oppresses its own people to curry their favor. We are a race as are the others. If we attribute to ourselves a superiority, intellectual, moral, or other, in terms of our own standards, we are simply indulging in a tautology. The only objective criterion of superiority, among human races as among all other species, is biological: the strong survive, the weak perish. The superior race of mankind today is the one that will emerge victorious — whether by its technology or its fecundity — from the proximate struggle for life on an overcrowded planet."

FREEDOM OF SPEECH — FREEDOM OF THOUGHT FREEDOM OF EXPRESSION

The editor/publisher of Liberty Bell does not necessarily agree with each and every article in this magazine, nor does he subscribe to all conclusions arrived at by various writers; however, he does endeavor to permit the exposure of ideas suppressed by the controlled news media of this country.

It is, therefore, in the best tradition of America and of free men everywhere that Liberty Bell strives to give free reign to ideas, for ultimately it is ideas which rule the world and determine both the content and structure of our Western culture.

We believe that we can and will change our society for the better. We declare our long-held view that no institution or government created by men, for men, is inviolable, incorruptible, and not subject to evolution, change, or replacement by the will of an informed people.

To this we dedicate our lives and our work. No effort will be spared and no idea will be allowed to go unexpressed if we think it will benefit the Thinking People, not only of America, but the entire world.

Our People, The Aryans

by J. B. Campbell

Great changes are coming regarding the historical record of our people, the Aryans. As we learn about our ancestors we learn about ourselves. This sort of learning is greatly feared by those who control education, information and entertainment—the modern mechanisms of control.

It is in the short-term interest of non-Aryan peoples to hide our historical record. We have effectively been cut off from our roots. We Aryans are forbidden by law to associate exclusively with our own kind. We are forbidden by law to complain about it, as well. No other people in North America or Europe is treated thusly. We may be the majority in this democracy but we are treated by our government as if we were in a "people's republic," a persecuted minority without rights. This is all because we don't know anything about ourselves.

There has been an almost unbelievable find in the deserts of western China, in Sinkiang Province, now known in PC as Xinjiang. The Tarim Basin of the Taklimaken Desert is the burial ground of our Aryan ancestors, more than a hundred of whose corpses have been recovered from the naturally preserving effects of the dry sands and freezing temperatures. More than a thousand skeletons without muscle tissue and hair have also been discovered. The Chinese have known about them for many decades but have been resolute in their refusal to tell us much about them. Why? Because it is now confirmed that some of our Aryan ancestors moved into that part of China at least 4,000 years ago and brought their culture with them. Apparently, their culture became an integral part of the Chinese culture.

As National Geographic puts it in the March, 1996 issue, "The finding that the mummies significantly predate Han Chinese presence in the area is affecting modern politics and has caused cultural and political consternation in some quarters." For example, the article's author, Thomas B. Allen, relates the following: "At Niya I found a sherd of pottery bearing the fingerprint of the potter. Excited, I showed it to Wang Binghua, Xinjiang's leading archaeologist and an authority on Niya, who was traveling with us. I asked for permission to bring it back to the United States, where, I told him, a forensic anthropologist might be able to extract information about the potter by studying the fingerprint. Wang Binghua, a Han Chinese, held the pottery for a moment, then asked, 'Would he be able to tell if the potter was a White man?' I said I didn't know. He nodded and put the sherd in his pocket. I never saw it again."

Not much has appeared in our press, naturally, about this find. The few articles published contain, however, much wonderful information. An excellent report is found in the April, 1994 issue of Discover magazine. Author Evan Hadingham writes: "Where exactly did these apparent Caucasians come from? And what were they doing at remote desert oases in Central Asia? Any answers to these questions will most likely fuel a wide-ranging debate about the role outsiders played in the rise of Chinese civilization. As far back as the second century B.C., Chinese texts refer to alien people called Yuezhi and the Wusun, who lived on China's far-western borders; the texts make it clear that these people were regarded as troublesome 'barbarians.' Until recently, scholars have tended to downplay evidence of any early trade or contact between China and the West, regarding the development of Chinese civilization as an essentially homegrown affair sealed off from outside influences; indeed, this view is still extremely congenial to the present Chinese regime. Yet some archaeologists have begun to argue that these supposed barbarians might have been responsible for introducing into China such basic items as the wheel and the first metal objects. Exactly who these Central Asian outsiders might have been, however—what language they spoke and where they came from—is a puzzle: No wonder, then, that scholars see the discovery of the blond mummies as a sensational new find."

The scholars do. The overlords of our culture do not. This is dangerous science. Professor Victor H. Mair writes, "...the Wusun people who, described in Chinese sources as having blue-green eyes and red beards, were undoubtedly Indo-European or had interbred extensively with Indo-Europeans." (Journal of Indo-European Studies (JIES) Fall/Winter '95) These Tarim Basin people brought not only the wheel and bronze objects to China but also woven fabrics. In the Sept/Oct, 1996 issue of Archaeology magazine, we read the following by Powledge & Rose: "Study of garments worn by 3,000-year-old mummies excavated in western China's Tarim Basin (see Archaeology, March/April 1995) has yielded the world's oldest cashmere threads. Other mummies wore wool twills woven in a plaid design dating to 720 B.C. that required looms most likely brought by settlers from the Eurasian steppes."

"Irene Good of the University of Pennsylvania and Elizabeth J. W. Barber of Occidental College examined textile samples from two sites, Chärchän and Hami, where mummies have been excavated since the late 1970s by Chinese and Uighur scholars. Good identified the cashmere threads from Chärchän by their shape, fineness, and consistency of diameter. 'The Chärchän textiles indicate a high degree of skill in sorting and spinning fibers,' she says. 'The presence of cashmere shows a very sophisticated breeding of goats for the fleece.' The plaid twill was dyed blue and derived from a hairy, rather than woolly, fleece. Barber says there is no evidence that the Chinese ever made wool twills on their looms, which were designed for silk, and that wool-weaving technology arrived with the western settlers of the Tarim Basin ca. 1800 B.C." (S.P.M. Harrington, Archaeology, Sept/Oct '96)

There is only one film of the mummies, produced by Scientific American Frontiers (SAF) for the Public Broadcasting System in 1995. Twelve minutes of a fifty minute program are devoted to the mummies. "Dragon Science"—This special takes viewers to China, where host Alan Alda visits the site of the world's most spectacular mummy find—a trove of extraordinarily well preserved and richly robed individuals who died some 4,000 years ago..." Alda introduces Prof. Mair: "If it weren't for this man, the mummies would have probably remained an obscure curiosity. Victor Mair, a China scholar from the University of Pennsylvania, visited the museum soon after we'd filmed..." When the Chinese officials realize that Mair and the film crew are associated, they ask the latter to leave. Soon after his visit a harsh article condemning Mair's work appeared in the state newspaper. "In China," says Alda, "even technical archaeological arguments can't be conducted freely... If the mummies were the trailblazers along this great world trade route [the Silk Road], four thousand years ago, it could mean that China acquired important new ideas from the west, and that's what irritates the government."

For those of us who will not be visiting the Ürümchi museum the video (Program # 602) is available from SAF at 800-315-5010.

One of the most fascinating details of these people is their fondness for the swastika, referred to delicately by National Geographic, March '96 as a "moving sun, perhaps a sign of Mithraic worship." It is the hakenkreuz, shown carved in a bowl found in Niya. "What is more, the Tarim Basin people were fond of spiral solar symbols for good luck which they painted on their faces and engraved on the bridles of their horses. The swastika is one such migratory symbol that is found all the way from ancient Mesopotamia to the New World." (Victor Mair, JIES, ibid.)

The mummies, or Caucasoid corpses, are at present deteriorating, now that they've been unearthed, in and around Ürümchi due to lack of official interest in preserving them as well as to the lack of modern facilities. A few are in the museum there but the rest have been put back in the ground for lack of space. If they were truly concerned about this incalculable loss to history they would send them to European or American museums, if only temporarily, for proper care. A few European scholars are trying to analyze the corpses before they decay further. Professor Mair has promised the Chinese to help build a "mummy museum" in Ürümchi. "With the help of interested citizens and organizations around the world, I am confident that I will be able to fill this obligation to preserve properly and display adequately this common heritage of humanity." (op. cit.)

Our good friend and Liberty Bell subscriber, Ernest H. Hume, is a geophysicist and was hired by the Chinese government a few years ago to interpret seismographic data gained in explorations in the Tarim Basin. At one point his government assistant asked if he would like to visit the museum in Ürümchi. Glad for the break, Mr. Hume did so and was amazed when he encountered the Caucasoid corpses in their colorful woolen fabrics and leather boots. Even his Chinese assistant was vague about the corpses' backgrounds, such is the state of Chinese government reluctance to share knowledge of the Aryans with its own people. Mr. Hume was appalled at the lack of care for these invaluable witnesses to our prehistory. They lay in the basement on marble benches, each covered with a blanket! Since then the Chinese have grudgingly moved several of the corpses upstairs and put them under glass but the rest of them are quietly rotting away. This is the clearest example of non-Aryan peoples having an interest in hiding our historical record. When our people are allowed to examine them, they take the greatest care in the interests of accuracy.

"Study of mtDNA [mitochondrial DNA] from ancient desiccated corpses found in the Tarim Basin in northwestern China by Paolo Francalacci of the University of Sassari, Sardinia, exemplifies the rigorous procedures required to prevent contamination. When he collected samples, Francalacci wore disposable rubber gloves to avoid skin contact and a surgical mask to prevent possible contamination from saliva when speaking or breathing. Disposable sterile scalpels were used, and the gloves and scalpels were changed when sampling a new corpse to prevent cross contamination. The specimens, about one to two grams of muscle, skin, or bone, were placed in sterile plastic tubes that were sealed to avoid the growth of microorganisms. The least exposed parts of the body, such as the inner thighs or underarms, were selected for the sampling, with the aim of analyzing tissue that had been subjected to little or no handling during excavations and curation. In some cases it was possible to take bone and soft tissue samples from beneath the mummies' woolen clothing. Two to four samples were taken from each individual so that the accuracy of the analysis could be checked. In the laboratory, disposable tools and glassware were employed whenever possible to minimize the possibility of contamination from previous use. Before being used, all chemicals, glassware and instrumentation that could be contaminated were exposed to ultraviolet light to destroy extraneous DNA."

"Paolo Francalacci took samples from several of the bodies, dated to 3,200 years ago, from a graveyard near Hami and from other sites in the region. Preliminary results of the DNA analysis for these mummies suggest a possible European origin, although further research is needed to identify them more precisely. Analysis of DNA, however, could shed light only on genetic lineage. The long process of physical and cultural evolution of the ancient Xinjiang people is more complicated, and will be understood only by combining genetic, linguistic, historical, archaeological and anthropological evidence..." (Archaeology, Sept-Oct, '96)

The same article goes on to say, "Documentation of the early presence of Caucasian people in northwestern China, and information about their affinities with either modern European or Indo-Iranian populations, could contribute to the debate about the spread of Indo-European languages. Chinese and Uighur archaeologists have been excavating naturally mummified bodies there since the 1970s...The mummies' Caucasian features suggest a relationship with the Tokharians, an Indo-European people that lived in the area in historical times. Tokharians were the eastern-most Indo-European speakers, but their language was more akin to Celtic and Germanic languages of western Europe than to geographically closer Balto-Slavic and Indo-Iranian languages. Tokharian also had some archaic features similar to Hittite."

About the Tokharians, Mair writes, "Although they do not speak, we know exactly what the Caucasoid corpses of the Tarim Basin look like because their bodies and the clothes they wear have been preserved for us. Fortunately, we also know what the Tokharians look like, because they were vividly portrayed in wall paintings at Kizil (also spelled Qizil) and Kumtura (also spelled Qumtura), Buddhist cave sites near Kucha. There we find aristocratic donors [of money and goods] with red or blond hair, parted neatly in the middle, long noses, blue or green eyes, set in narrow faces, and tall, slim bodies. Like European knights, they wear long broadswords inserted in scabbards hung from their waists. The swords are of the early Gothic type, with disk-like pommels and cross-shaped grip-guards. Yet they are not fully European knights, for they are wearing Sassanian dress and have on their foreheads the Indian religious mark known as a tilaka!" (Victor Mair, JIES op. cit.)

In April, 1996 there was held at the University of Pennsylvania an international conference, "The Bronze Age and Iron Age People of Eastern Central Asia". Organized by Professor Mair of the Department of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies, the conference enabled scholars working in various regions and time periods in the Eurasian steppes to bring about a cohesive exchange of research for the first time. It took Prof. Mair, whose father herded his cattle on the slopes of the Austrian Alps, two years to organize the conference.

"...Mair—who saw the original collection of mummified corpses in 1987, at the region's provincial museum—will never forget his own haunting first impression of them... 'I was thunderstruck...I just stood there for a couple of hours. I almost thought it was some kind of hoax,' he said. 'All of their bodies were completely intact. They just looked so alive.' And with features so stunningly non-Asian. They were clearly the remains of a Caucasoid people, with dark blond or yellowish-brown hair, deep-set eyes and long limbs..." (Ellen O'Brien, Philadelphia Inquirer, April, 1996)

"Where did they come from, and why? Those questions also possess Dolkun Kamberi, a Uygur archaeologist who grew up in the region and has recovered several of the preserved corpses. Kamberi grew up hearing folk stories about non-Chinese people who had settled the region in some unrecorded time, and about foreign archaeologists who had found grave sites in the province during the last century. As a native Uygur, he has medium brown hair and non-Asian features; he believes the Tarim Basin people's history is his history. Learning who the Tarim Basin's inhabitants might have been, he said, is 'very important for writing Asian history, and world history. In my opinion, without that region, there would be no Asian history.'

"Some scholars believe the Tarim Basin people probably migrated through central Eurasia to the land that, centuries later, became known as the southern leg of the famous Silk Route linking East and West." (Ellen O'Brien, ibid.)

The abstracts of the conference and a lengthy bibliography are for sale from: Mummies Abstracts, University of Pennsylvania, Dep't of Asian and ME Studies, Philadelphia, PA 19104.

A valuable collection of essays on the Caucasoid corpses can be found in the Fall/Winter 1995 issue of the Journal of Indo-European Studies (1133 13th St. NW, Suite C-2, Washington, DC 20005 Tel: 202-371-2700).

This scholarly investigation cannot help but lead to our liberation from the lords of the memory hole if we will just read the literature and spread the word.

It is my contention that we Aryans have just one real problem and that is Christianity. Much has been written in this journal about this pernicious doctrine which has weakened us unto death with its basic premise that the Jews are the Chosen People of God. Identity Christians go this one further by claiming that they, not the Jews, are God's favorites. Now, a number of my friends are of this persuasion and it has come to be one of my missions to disabuse them of this notion, which is that Aryans are the Hebrews, the Israelites, of the Old Testament. I tell them that simply to read the Old Testament will knock this idea from their heads, but that hasn't been a good approach in most cases—it is not a fun read. Even the recent computerized decoding (by Jews) of a stela (small stone monument) found in Jordan, which revealed the truth about the evil Hebrew god, Molech, hasn't been effective. (Jews, using a computer, decoded the Phoenician inscription and found to their great embarrassment that Molech was not an ancient Hebrew god who demanded the sacrifice of children by burning them. Molech was in fact the Hebrew practice of sacrificing their children by burning them.) I ask my friends, "Can you identify with this?"

Next, I wrote a linguistics professor at an Ivy League university for her opinion. "There are several religions which adhere to the idea that Europeans are the true Israelites of the Old Testament...I think linguistics may be the key to the truth, whatever it may be. Do Hebrew and Aramaic appear in the Indo-European language tree?" Her reply: "Hebrew and Aramaic are not Indo-European languages; they belong to the Semitic group (together with Akkadian—i.e., ancient Babylonian and Assyrian—, Arabic, and quite a few languages of Ethiopia). Semitic is, in turn, a subgroup of Afroasiatic, which also includes ancient Egyptian, the Berber languages, and various language groups of the Sahel region and (again) Ethiopia. Some crackpots have tried to insist on a connection between Afroasiatic and Indo-European, but it just isn't provable (in spite of many decades of work on that hypothesis)."

That, too, fell on rather deaf ears. So, instead of trying to talk my friends out of their Semitic religion I will now use a new approach: If it is religion they must have, then here is the authentic religion of our Aryan ancestors...

This article was originally going to be about the Freemasons. As students of Freemasonry know, the basic handbook of the craft is Morals & Dogma, written by Albert Pike and published in 1871.

Pike was Grand Commander of the Supreme Council, 33°, Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, from 1859 to his death in 1891. Today he would be the Sovereign Grand Commander, which is the top of the tree and is based on seniority. The SGC literally gives orders to U.S. presidents (as I shall demonstrate another time), many of whom, from Washington on, have been adepts of the 33°. Today, the Sovereign Grand Commander, among his other functions, edits the house organ, New Age magazine. The subversive New Age movement is a Freemasonic operation. The American Revolution, the French Reign of Terror, our Civil War, the Bolshevik Reign of Terror, our World Wars were all run by Freemasons. Freemasonry controls every single aspect of our lives, based on Freemasonic infiltration of the federal, state and local governments. The homosexual transvestite FBI director, J. Edgar Hoover, is enshrined in the Washington Masonic Temple, headquarters of the 33° (Official and Confidential, Anthony Summers). Most judges, lawyers, policemen and other officials are members of the craft, as are many ministers and priests, doctors and educators. Freemasonry has corrupted virtually every single city, town and village across our great land. Instrumental in this corruption has been Albert Pike's doctrine, which is based largely on the Jewish Kabbalah, a system of esoteric theosophy developed by rabbis from the 7th to the 18th centuries.

For example, Pike writes, on page 843, "Moses carried Orthodoxy out of Egypt, and in the Secret Traditions of the Kabbalah we find a Theology entire, perfect, unique, like that which in Christianity is most grand and best explained by the Fathers and the Doctors, the whole with a consistency and a harmoniousness which it is not as yet given to the world to comprehend."

So it is extremely ironic that one year after the publication of Morals & Dogma Albert Pike should have completed a manuscript entitled Indo-Aryan Deities and Worship as Contained in the Rig-Veda. It is more than ironic—it is astounding. In his preface he writes: "It is quite uncertain, now that I have this book finished, whether I shall ever care to publish it. It was not commenced for that purpose; and it may always remain a monotype, in manuscript." It did so remain from 1872 until the Freemasons printed 800 copies of it in 1930. My wife, amazingly, located Copy No. 261. It is understandable that Pike would not want his research made available to the public or even to his fellow Masons:

"The inquiry has opened to me an entirely new chapter of the history of human thought, and given me an infinitely higher conception of the Aryan intellect. I now see how, out of the primitive simplicity of a natural and reasonable religion, and of ideas simple and yet profoundly philosophical, there grew the most monstrous and debasing faiths, the most absurd and delirious fables, the most irrational mysticism, and the Phallic and Lingam worship with its disgusting obscenities and Priapean abominations, as well as the incoherent no- tions of the Kabbalah and the vagaries of Gnosticism." [emphasis added]

Apprentice Masons are told that the "G" in the compass and square logo stands for "God." Later they are told that it stands for "Geometry." In the higher mysteries they are informed that it stands for "Gnosticism," or mystical knowledge.

On page 28 he writes, "When we read the Brahmanic books, as when we read the Kabbalistic books, we are amazed at the vagaries, not of the fancy or of the imagination, but of lunacy and idiotic babble, in which the human mind can indulge." [emphasis added] On page 416 he writes "The writers of the Kabbalah did not know what they meant, for they, for the most part, meant nothing. The composers of the Veda always meant something, and knew what they meant."

For some reason, this brilliant man, who lured millions of Aryans into the alien darkness of the Kabbalah, writes of the Aryan god as "...a Deity beneficent, indulgent, protecting and not merciless, cruel and vindictive like the Semitic Gods that have so long been the Christian God..."

The great question which haunts you after having examined this work is, how could Pike stick with Jewish Freemasonry after writing such words? Jekyll and Hyde? The corruption of absolute power? Hypocrisy? Or did this power-mad gangster merely collect and admire Aryan history the way some people collect and admire butterflies, not sharing them with anyone else? Why did he not share this important knowledge with anyone while he was alive? The answer is that it would have undermined and ultimately destroyed Freemasonry; self-respecting Aryans would have shunned it like the plague.

Pike leans heavily on several scholars, most notably Professor H. H. Wilson, the primary translator of the Veda from Sanskrit to English, and Max (Friedrich Maximilian) Müller (1823-1900), the German-born, Oxford professor of English Sanskrit who is today considered a Nazi by Hindus who pretend that the Rig-Veda has something to do with Hinduism, which it has not. Müller makes it clear that the Hindus (Indians) expropriated and then misinterpreted the Aryan Rig-Veda and turned it into something unintelligible.

"What is commonly called Hindu mythology is of little or no avail for comparative purposes. The stories of Siva, Vishnu, Mahādeva, Parvati, Kali, Krishna, etc., are of late growth, and indigenous to India." (Müller, Chips from a German Workshop)

Pike adds, "It is enough for me to say here, that I think the conclusion justifiable, that the earliest Aryans had no other Deities than the sun, moon and other celestial luminaries, and that, after that they had advanced beyond this, to the worship of universals or principles (as fire and light, for example)... The Hindus, it may at once be said, were almost totally ignorant as to the signification of the Vedic Gods; and what they were must be determined from the Veda itself."

"Of that which is the most important and interesting portion of the history of every race and nation, the history of the progress of the intellect and of its religious and philosophical ideas, the Vedas contain the only authentic record..."

"Veda meant 'knowing,' or 'knowledge.' It appears in the Gothic vait, the Anglo-Saxon wāt, the German weiss, and the English "wise, wisdom," and "to wit." Rig-Veda means the Veda of Hymns of Praise, Rich..."

Following are more excerpts from Indo-Aryan Deities and Worship (narrative by Pike unless otherwise noted, my comments in brackets):

[RELIGION AND RACE]

The Veda is certainly the second oldest book in the world, and it contains the religious hymns of our ancestors; for we, of whatever mixture of European blood, are wholly of the Aryan race. Germans, Gauls, Franks, Latins, Saxons, Kelts, Slaves, all are of one blood and family; and the English and all other European languages, and the Sanskrit, Zend and Persian are but varieties of one and the same original language, produced by intermixtures of various others. We are by nature Aryan, Indo-European, not Semitic. There is no mixture of Semitic in the European languages. The indigenous peoples whom the Aryans conquered, and with whom they mixed, were of a race or races totally different from the Semites. Our spiritual kith and kin are to be found in India, Persia, Slavonia, Greece, Italy and Germany; not in Mesopotamia, Egypt or Palestine.

The exodus from Egypt, according to the approved chronology, occurred 1,648 years before Christ. The Vedas were compiled 1,400 years before Christ, when the language in which the hymns were written had become a dead language and kingdoms had been founded and grown grey with age, since they were sung in the country of the Five Rivers [the Punjab].

Müller ascribes the composition of the Vaidic Hymns to a later period than [Baron C. C. J. von] Bunsen does; and in his fear of shocking English prejudices, is exceedingly vague and unsatisfactory upon that point. Even Bunsen is careful not to say that the Veda is older than the Hebrew books. The Biblical chronology, the necessity of considering mere myths and legends as historical, and the supposed inexorable necessity of admitting that all mankind has descended from one man and woman, are sadly in the way of exhaustive inquiry as to the origins [sic] of human races and human languages.

Bunsen thinks that the oldest Vedas are the monuments of Aryan life in the country of the Five Rivers. I think they are monuments of an older life, on the steppes. He thinks that the Aryans immigrated into the Indus country about 4,000 years before Christ, then having the old Bactrian living language, in which the old Zend books were written; and in that country the Sanskrit grew up... The emigration from Sogd [Sogdiana] into Bactria, he places about 5000 B.C. He concludes that the original emigration from the northeast of the primitive land took place from 10000 to 8000 B.C.; that the separation of the Germans, Slaves and Pelasgians occurred, successively, from 8000 to 5000 B.C.; Zarathustra's reform, about 3500, and the crossing of the Sutlej into the country beyond, where Brahmanism was established about 3,000 years before Christ.

Logical evidence infallibly establishes it as a proven and demonstrated fact, that great intervals of time elapsed between the successive out-flowings of the several streams of Aryan emigration; and that, when the Vedic hymns were composed, the race had an immense antiquity, and Aryan thought and imagination had been busy during the great cycles of centuries. The ancestors of the Kelts, Goths, Germans and Slaves, as well as those of the Greeks and Latins, were men of full intellectual stature, and in no sense barbarians; and these had gone with their herds to conquer Europe, ages before the separation of the Irano- and Indo-Aryan branches of their race: and centuries more had passed, after that separation, before the ancient tongue spoken in the valleys of the Bolor Tagh and in the valleys of Samarcand and Bokhara, had become the Sanskrit of the Veda and the Iranic of the Zend-Avesta.

The oldest, most primitive and simplest form of Aryan faith finds its expression in the Veda.

The Veda, by its language and its thoughts, supplies that distant background in the history of all the religions of the Aryan race, which was missed, indeed, by every careful observer, but could formerly be supplied by guesswork only.

We have in the Veda, ancient thought expressed in ancient language. We see reflected in it a phase of the intellectual life of man, to which there is no parallel in any other part of the world. In its hymns we see man left to himself, to solve the enigma of this world and life.

There are hymns in the Vedas so full of thought and speculation, that, at that early period, no Poet in any other nation could have conceived them. (Müller)

We see him [the Aryan] with the simple desires of a simple life in the forests and plains; for almost all the hymns express the wants and wishes of the herdsman, and the dweller in the woods only traversable by paths, or in the plains, where only the luminaries of the day and night could be his guides. Some show the occupation of the worshiper to be that of husbandman [farmer]. They are villagers, but not denizens of towns and cities. Continually the prayer is for wealth and treasure, but these seem always to mean only horses and cattle, and for food. Everywhere in the hymns we find horses and cattle prayed for, as the chief wealth. For them, the life they lived here seems to have been sufficient, the things of this world all that were to be cared for; and they neither lament the brevity of life, nor concern themselves about or anticipate another.

This herdsman or husbandman sees that fire and light are indispensable to human existence, and that they alone reveal to man the existence of the material universe. What they reveal, they seem to create. He is awakened by the dawn or the sun, or, watching before the dawn sees the light-bearer, the beautiful and brilliant Morning Star rise calmly into the sky and smile kindly upon him; and he adored the dawn, the sun, the Morning Star as manifestations of the one great universal light; but I do not find that he invokes the favour of a God, who is not fire nor light, nor any force or power or essence or principle of Nature, but a being invisible and incomprehensible, above Nature and its forces. I think I can most positively assert that there is no such conception in the Veda.

He makes the Fire a person, and invests it, as a universal, with the characteristics of spirituality. He adores the Fire-Spirit, the universal Light-Principle, the Heat-Principle, as Gods; and they become not merely Powers, but Persons, to him, protectors and benefactors, who hear his prayers and are intelligent and wise. Under various names he adores the same light and fire as variously manifested in shape, place and limitation of forms, as the sun, moon, planets and stars. Even prayer, adoration silent or uttered, and food itself, become Deities, by a strictly logical process of thought, and not by mere vagary of fancy or imagination. He adores the fire and light, also, in the dawn, the Aurora and the lightning. The winds are Gods for him, and even the rivers become Goddesses. The sacrificial Fire fed by the fuel which also he deifies, is the messenger of the Gods and his mediator with them.

Professor Müller says,

We study in the Veda a theogony [origin of the gods], of which that of Hesiod is but the last chapter. We can study therein man's natural growth, and the results to which it may lead, under the most favourable conditions.

And we can study the intellect and the intellectual development of the last created and noblest race of men, whose history is that of the civilized world.

The original religion was adoration of the supposed superior beings of which fire and light were manifestations. The mind had made a great advance when it had come to worship, not the fire itself but the unseen and intelligent Spirit of the fire, of which the light was deemed a manifestation. There is at least nothing slavish or brutal, sensual or groveling in these hymns, nothing of the barbarian or savage. A spirit of grave thoughtfulness pervades them; they are highly devotional and reverential; of philosophy there is little; and yet the idea that there was a spirit, of whom no cognition could be had, in fire, a spirit intelligent, wise and powerful, was of the same profound nature as that of the immortal soul, united with the body, or of the divine soul in nature. It was not the idea of a savage or a child, but of a philosopher and metaphysician; and I think that as these hymns are better understood, and we penetrate more deeply into the thought of the Poets who composed them, we shall find ideas there, which have re-appeared in all the great philosophies of the world, and been essential in all the great religions. [emphasis added]

Mr. [Sir George William] Cox (Aryan Mythology I, 40 et. seq.) says:

The mental condition of the men of those early ages determined the character of their language; and that condition exhibited in them, as in children, how, the waking of a feeling which endowed all outward things with a life not unlike their own. Of the several objects which met their eyes, they had no positive knowledge, whether of their origin, their nature or their properties. But they themselves had life, and therefore all other things must have life also. They were under no necessity of personifying them, for they had for themselves no distinctions between consciousness and personality. They knew nothing of the conditions of their own life, or of any other; and therefore all things on the earth or in the heavens were invested with the same vague idea of existence. The sun, the moon, the stars, the earth, the clouds, winds, fire, storms and lightnings, were all living beings. Could they help thinking that these also were conscious beings like themselves? Their very words would, by an inevitable necessity, express this conviction. Their language would admit no single expression from which the attribute of life was excluded, while it would vary the forms of that life, with unerring instinct. Every object would be a living reality, and every word a speaking picture. For the herdsman of the valleys or the steppes, there would be no bare recurrence of days and seasons, but every morning, the Dawn would drive her bright flocks to the blue pastures of Heaven, before the birth of the Lord of Day from the toiling womb of Night. Round the living progress of the new-born Sun there would be grouped a lavish imagery, expressive of the most intense sympathy with what we term the operation of material forces, and not less expressive of the utter absence of even the faintest knowledge. For every aspect of the material world he would find some life-giving expression...

However imperfect and absurd the notions of Deity of the ancient Aryans may seem to us to be, it must be admitted that no people was ever so anxious to perform the service of the Gods, as these ancestors of our European races. It is the Gods who conquer their enemies, who give them wealth, health, children, friends, and plentiful harvests. They humbly acknowledge their dependence on their Deities, and touchingly express their trust in their beneficence and kindness. (Müller)

No one supreme God is invoked, like Jehovah or Brahm[a]: and no doubt the religion of the Veda is polytheism.

[Regarding the theory of evolution, Müller writes]

...as far as we can trace back the footsteps of man, even on the lowest strata of history, we see that the divine gift of a sound and sober intellect belonged to him from the very first; and the idea of a humanity emerging from the depths of an animal brutality can never be maintained again.

I do not apply these words to races of men like the lowest Africans, Australians and American Indians; but to the great races whose history is the history of civilization. The Aryan race was never a race of barbarians.

Probably none of the hymns can be imputed to a date so early as that of the separation of either the Sclavic, German or Keltic branch, from the great Aryan stock, though the Vedas contain a great number of the roots from which the words in most common use in the languages of those branches were derived or developed.

Dr. Muir says (Original Sanskrit Texts)

We find this name (Aryas) applied to the forefathers of the higher classes among the Indians, in contradistinction to the Dasyus, who appear to have been a people of a different race, and to have been settled in India before the Aryas (and who were also of dark complexions, and barbarians or savages).

Dâsa has in [Theodor] Benfey [Sanskrit-English Dictionary] the single meaning "slave," as, probably, dam+sa, dam meaning "to be tamed, to tame, to subdue." But those not subdued, and who were open and dangerous enemies, numerous and powerful, were called by this name, and also dasyu.

Each stream of emigration encountered the opposition of an aboriginal race, in every country into which it flowed, and everywhere they were conquerors, or the original language would have died out for each. Each intermingled with one or more aboriginal races, one in greater, another in less proportion; and the language of each mingled with that of the conquered people. Hence the vast differences and also the striking identities between the Welsh tongue and the Sanskrit, the Slavonic and Persian, the German and the Latin and Greek; and hence also the great differences of physical and intellectual characteristics, and the peculiar and apparently permanent types of the Irish, Grecian, Roman and Hindu face. In fact, the language and the type and cast of features, and the intellectual character of some of the races come chiefly from the conquered aborigines, while others have preserved infinitely more of the Aryan type, probably because the conquerors were, relatively to the conquered, more numerous: and these physical and intellectual differences are also, no doubt, greatly owing to immense original differences of face, form and intellect, among the aboriginal races of Asia and Europe, that the Aryans overcame and mingled with.

Thus I satisfied myself that every one of their Deities had for them a perfectly distinct and clear personality and individuality; that their ideas were not in the least vague, incoherent or confused; that their imagination was perfectly well-regulated, and that every epithet and phrase was logically appropriate and correct. So also, upon a partial examination, I found it to be in the ancient Zarathustrian Gâthâs, which are, I do not doubt, even older than the Vedic hymns.

I found in both, the most profound philosophic or metaphysical ideas, which those of every philosophy and religion have merely developed; and that, so far from being Barbarians or Savages, the old Aryan herdsmen and husbandmen, in the Indus country under the Himalayan Mountains, on the rivers of Bactria, and, long before, on the Scythic Steppes where they originated, were men of singularly clear and acute intellects, profound thought and an infinite reverence of the beings whom they worshiped [fire and sunlight].

This writer [Samuel Johnson, Oriental Religions] has the key of interpretation of the Veda, and has, I think, in a few sentences expressed more of the real meaning of its hymns, than any other commentator. For example:

The word Div, designating at once the clear light of the sky...and whatsoever spiritual meanings these simple instincts intimately associated therewith, has endured as the root word of worship for the whole Aryan race: in all its branches the appellatives of Deity are waves of this primal sound, flowing through all its manifold and changing religions with the serene transcendence of an eternal law...

To appreciate the results of these contemplative tendencies, we must recall the old Aryan worship of the clear Light of Day.

Their religion, like their language, was already mature, when they were born. Do not seek in them the beginning of the religious sentiment, the dawning of the idea of the Divine. Their Deities are all familiar and ancestral. It is already an intimate household faith, which ages have endeared... As far back as we can trace the life of man, we find the river of prayer and praise flowing as naturally as it is flowing now. We cannot find its beginning, because we cannot find the beginning of the soul.

That is true of the Aryan race. But we know nothing of the lacustrine dwellers or the Troglodytes of the Quarternary period, or the indigenes of various countries, of the age or period of stone. And we find prayer and praise flowing among the Egyptians, Hebrews and Chinese, also, as far back as we can trace them. What is much more important, of incalculable importance to us, is this, that if the ontological [metaphysical] conceptions which I think are really contained in the Veda and Zend-Avesta, are really there, it has needed neither special inspiration nor special incarnation of God to teach men any truth of which the human intellect is now possessed. The Aryan human intellect was able to discover them all.

[THE VEDA VERSUS HINDUISM AND THE BRAHMANIC WRITINGS]

[For those who think there is some connection between our Aryan ancestors' religion and the cow-worshipping, multi-armed freakish idols of Hinduism, Müller says:]

The oldest, most primitive and simplest form of Aryan faith finds its expression in the Veda. No idols or animals are mentioned in it, as objects of worship.

In fact, idols and images are not mentioned at all. They belong only to an anthropological faith. They do not represent the light and the heat. The Veda does not invest its Deities with the human form. It does not represent any of them as coming down in visible shape and having commerce with men.

I do not speak of the Hindu commentators. Making the Vedas the sacred books of their own faith, they utterly denaturalized them, and systematically misunderstood and misinterpreted them. I speak of Professor Wilson, [John] Muir..Müller and others, to whose intelligent labours the student of the Vedas is so infinitely indebted.

Dr. Muir says: (Original Sanskrit Texts, ii. 288),

From the Vedic hymns, accordingly, it does, in fact, appear, more distinctly than from any other of the Indian writings, that the progenitors of the Hind_s were originally called Aryas.

That is true: but the Vedas should not be called Indian writings, for the hymns, or at least the older ones, were the composition of those who were the ancestors of the Hind_s or Indians, of the Persians, and of the Greeks and Latins. This is absolutely certain, because we unmistakably find in them the Origines of the Deities of all these branches of the one race, and of their principle religious and philosophical ideas; as we hope very clearly to prove.

Dr. Muir says of the Vedas,

We find in them ideas, a language, a spirit and a colouring, totally different from those which characterize the religious writings of the Hindus of a later era... they show us the Aryan tribes living in a state of warfare with surrounding enemies, many of them, no doubt, alien in race and language... (They picture themselves to us as a people having villages, perhaps, but no cities—the cities being spoken of being all of the Dasyus their enemies, the dark-skinned natives of the land.)

The Brahmanic intellect tortured itself with a thousand questions in regard to the creation, and at last invented a whole pantheon of Gods, and the most grotesque and absurd theories as to the origination or generation of things; until a hideous idolatry was the consequence.

As to the value of Hindu interpretation of the Veda, some idea may be formed from this which Müller says in regard to Brahmanas, the oldest of the Hindu books:

There is throughout the Brahmanas such a complete misunderstanding of the original of the Vedic hymns, that we can hardly understand how such an estrangement could have taken place, unless there had been, at some time or other, a sudden and violent break in the chain of tradition....Every page of the Brahmanas contains the clearest proof that the spirit of the ancient Vedic poetry, and the purport of the original Vedic sacrifices, were both beyond the comprehension of the authors of the Brahmanas. (Ancient Sanskrit Literature 432. 434):

And the Brahmanic notions in regard to the Deities, their origins and their functions, were so totally different from those of the Poets of the Vedas as to render them utterly incapable of understanding the old texts in any other sense than the false ones, which suited their own mythology and metaphysics.

Our Christian friends will have been scandalized by Pike's suggestion that the Aryan intellect was able to discover all truths of which the intellect is now possessed. I suggest that it is the Aryan intellect which is able to reject the distortions and perversions found in the Judeo-Christian Bible which have been foisted on us in our innocent childhoods.

Many Christians will be discomfited by our Aryan ancestors' worship of light due to the association they might make with "Lucifer," the light-bringer, the proud, rebellious archangel (associated with Satan) who was expelled from heaven. Or with Pike's mention of the Morning Star (Venus), also known as Lucifer, especially considering Pike's other life as Grand Commander of the 33. Some of our Christian friends consider anyone who criticizes the Judeo-Christian God to be an adversary, i.e., Satan. It seems to me that a god which would drown virtually all life on Earth, which would test the reliability of a follower by ordering him to cut his son's throat, which would send his own son to be slaughtered "for our sins," a god which welcomed and sanctified the Jewish executioner of the earliest Christian Jews, and which sadistically punished all women with painful childbirth for the alleged "sin" of Eve, is nothing more than the product of the feverish rabbinical mind. With a god such as this, who needs a Satan? Our Christian friends are worshipping a Semitic god. This is unnatural. Christianity is a complex mythology, drafted by rabbis, in which the main character surrenders to his killers, and is not a healthy belief system. Jewish Christianity has impeded our advancement as it has enabled our natural enemies to dominate us, for we have not dared say "no" to God's Chosen People. Aryans who worship the god of the Jews are Judaized. It is not our way and perhaps this short article can be the first step for some toward escaping the subversive, death-worshipping cult of Yahweh. Our people must not be enslaved to a despotic deity.

Our Aryan ancestors were horsemen in our northern homeland. They were neither slaves in Egypt nor looters in Canaan. Their ancient blood flows in our veins today. They were tough, independent, self-made men and women who rode the plains, herded their cattle on horses in the best tradition of the American West. These were no half-naked savages riding bareback they wore tightly woven, brilliantly colored woolen trousers, shirts and fur-trimmed leather coats and leather boots. They decorated their padded leather saddles, their leather bridles and reins and used snaffle bits made of bronze identical in design with those of today!

Our people shunned the cities, prayed for the destruction of their enemies, the Dasyus, the people of darkness. Our people conquered virtually everyone they encountered and brought their life-giving culture to the rest of the world.

Christians, reconsider! Would you rather be riding the range, fighting darkies and loving your deities which brightened the day and kept you warm and let you see in the night, or what? In which period of early Christian life would you choose to have lived? Drowning witches, burning heretics on bonfires made of books, medical heretics who could have made life better sooner, scientific heretics who could have expanded our knowledge sooner, religious (political) heretics who would have freed our ancestors from their proto-Soviet theocracy, the Holy Roman Catholic Church? At what point in time was Christian life healthy? In Jesus' time, when all Christians were Jewish rebels? During the Middle (Dark) Ages, made dark and deadly by the Church? The pointless and blood-soaked Crusades? Only in the Renaissance, when the awesome and ruthless power of the Church began to decay, did life begin to improve. Christianity, since the time of Emperor Constantine, has been nothing more than a cruel psychological weapon to keep the Aryan people under control by instilling in them fear and unearned guilt, when it wasn't sending the best of them to die at the hands of one or another far-off nation of infidels.

Christian-Israelites, reconsider! With whom would you rather identify? With the wicked, God-forsaken Semitic Israelites or with our true people, who were, according to Pike, "evidently a more intellectual race than those that surrounded them, and claiming that superiority by their name Arya, these Aryan, noble or warlike, Scyths advanced beyond the worship of the visible luminaries and material forces of Nature, to more spiritual conceptions and philosophical ideas, making it easy for Zarathustra to conceive of a Creative Deity, cognizable only by the intellect, and of the immortality and pre-existence of the human soul. Thus the world owes to them all its profound religious and philosophical ideas, and Plato and Philo did but develop the great thoughts of the Vedic Poets and of Zarathustra."

The main question which must be asked of the (Identity) Christian-Israelites is this: How, since we share the same loathing of Judaism, can you worship their god and share their heroes? You pretend to be Hebrews and ape their strange ways, to the extent of observing their Sabbath and keeping Kosher. Your only doctrinal disagreement is with regard to Jesus as the messiah. Your theorists insist that the Old Testament is not a Jewish, but is rather a Hebrew, book. That the Jews came out of Babylon with their evil Talmud after seventy years in captivity. That is, that they went into the Babylonian captivity as good Hebrews and came out as Talmudic Jews. This suggests that the Hebrews in the pre-Babylonian period were good. Those Hebrews were nasty, twisted, woman-hating, superstitious scum. Read the books of Moses! Their god your god was a product of their Hebrew minds, always playing tricks on his most faithful (beginning with the innocent ones in the Garden of Eden), demanding sacrifices, drowning virtually all life on earth, promising rewards to his undeserving Chosen Ones unearned rewards which would be ripped from his enemies. The Semitic god is a wicked god, a pure reflection of a wicked people. The tragedy is that any of our Aryan people could be persuaded to accept this wicked god as their own, be they conventional or unconventional Christians. This is the root cause of our undoing as a race.

Near the end of this remarkable book, on page 604, Pike concludes: "And there is an immense wealth of content and satisfaction, to me, in surely knowing that nothing which is known to us in regard to God, ourselves or Nature, nothing of true religion, nothing of sound ontology, has come to us from the race that had its origin in the low flat alluvion of the Euphrates and the Tigris; and we no more think the Semitic thought than we have in our veins Semitic blood, or speak a Semitic tongue."

This article is dedicated to the memory of Professor Revilo Pendleton Oliver (1908-1994), for his accomplishments in the translation of Sanskrit and for his great contributions and personal sacrifices for the Aryan race. It is also dedicated to Professor Charles E. Weber, who has been telling us for some years now that we should be referring to ourselves as Aryans.

Re: The article by Robert Shnayerson, Judgment at Nuremberg that appeared in the October 1996 issue of the Smithsonian magazine.

Dear Mr. Walker:

Ever since the fiftieth anniversary of the German defeat in World War II was celebrated by the victors last year, a crescendo of hate and falsehood has been unleashed against Germans and German-Americans that had not been surpassed in ferocity since shortly after the cessation of hostilities in 1945. It seems as if all the good will that had been created between former enemies in five decades of cooperation, and all the diligent work done by historians in sorting facts from fiction during all these years, have come to naught: Right now we are back to where we started out, namely, in May of 1945.

After having suffered through the nonsense espoused in "Schindler's List", a "true" docu-drama based upon a book that can still only be found in the fiction shelves of the libraries, and the insults heaped upon all Germans everywhere by Daniel Jonah Goldhagen in his badly researched, and even worse reasoned book Hitler's willing executioners; ordinary Germans and the Holocaust, along comes the October 1996 issue of the Smithsonian magazine with Shnayerson's article on the Nuremberg trials, mentioned above.

This writer, a native-born German, cannot help but wonder what sort of mental deficiency it is that prevents ordinary Americans from seeing through the lies, the insults, and the outrageous untruths that are heaped upon them by Jewish writers in all matters pertaining to the so-called "Holocaust". Does the use of this word work like some magical (mental) toxicant that prevents intelligent Americans from using their God-given talent for reasoning and independent judgment?

Shnayerson's entire article is best exemplified by his use of the photograph on page 131, where the (later) Senator Thomas Dodd is holding a shrunken human head, allegedly manufactured in a German concentration camp. That story was put on the trash heap of history (where it belongs) as long ago as fifty-one years ago, shortly after it was first mentioned at the Nuremberg trials. Anybody who (still) believes it is an idiot! (What does that make the editors of the Smithsonian magazine who permitted this nefarious war propaganda to be rehashed a half-century after that war had ended?) In using the shrunken head story, Shnayerson proves, to us anyway, that currently a determined effort is afoot to demigrate and defame all Germans, "no matter what!" It follows the recent rebirth of the "soap made from Jewish cadavers" claim, the allegation (in the New York Post) by a Jewish woman who was born in Germany that "the Nazis" had killed one million Blacks during the Third Reich, an empire that never had any number of Blacks to speak of under its jurisdiction, and the pressure brought upon the Bonn Government to prosecute Germans who too diligently delve into alleged historical facts whose never-ending propagation is nothing but a continuation of the insidious allied re-education.

We do not know what is the reason for the current anti-

German attacks by the American media. It could be because Germany, in spite of tremendous losses in population, cultural heritage and area, as a result of the war, again seems "the" European power to be reckoned with, a power that may someday challenge the aspirations of American internationalists for world domination. It also could be because of pure envy that the Germans have managed to create the best social system than can be found among the important nations of the world. Where else do employees get 18 paid holidays a year?

But having the choice of guessing, and basing our assumptions mainly upon the fact that the anti-German articles such as the one in your magazine, and books like Goldhagen's, are almost exclusively written by Jews, we do believe that Zionist activists, i.e., those who are responsible for setting aims and determining strategies for the "Forever Persecuted Minority" are now living with the justified fear that the "Holocaust" (i.e., "the (alleged) planned extermination through the use of gas chambers and crematoria at the hands of the Nazis (Germans) of six million Jews (and five million others) during World War II"), has lost its luster and believability among ordinary Americans, and what we are experiencing at this time is a desperate and determined effort to reverse the tide. Perhaps, so hope the Zionist activists, articles such as Shnayerson's, in which absolutely no effort was made to stick to the facts now available, a new crop of Americans can be induced to believe all the Holocaust tales, and thereby may be willing to continue (indefinitely) the American monetary generosity toward Israel and the Jewish people.

There is no question that the entire "Holocaust" allegation has been of tremendous financial benefit not only for the State of Israel but for World Jewry in general. For those who question this statement I will only ask: would Israel still be in existence without the regular inflow of many billions of dollars and deutschmarks every year, and would Zionism have such a stranglehold on American politics as it does without the huge finances needed to push the Jewish agenda? Could politicians here and in Europe who are responsible for this state of affairs be continually strong-armed into providing ever more monies for Jewry were it not for the alleged murder of six million Jews in "Nazi" gas chambers?

Tragically, far too many individual Jews in important positions always put the interests of their own ethnic group, their own religion, and their own Weltanschauung ahead of that of nations, institutions or companies that pay their salaries, or to which they really owe their loyalty. A good example are the current Jewish members of President Clinton's cabinet whose every single action seems driven by an adherence to Jewish or Zionist aims. Would Mickey Kantor represent the interests of the American movie industry vs. foreign nations as diligently, were "Hollywood" not totally under Jewish control? Would Madeleine Albright risk the ridicule of the U.S. by the entire UN world body at the sessions of the United Nations Security Council, were it not for her loyalty to Israel? Would Messrs. Greenspan and Rubin ever make any decisions relating to the currency and fiscal policies of the United States without first considering their impact on the well-being of Eretz Israel (i.e., "World Jewry")? Would Shnayerson's hate article against the Germans have been published in the formerly prestigious Smithsonian magazine were it not for the fact that both persons responsible for the publication, namely, I. Michael Heyman and Don Moser, are Jews?

Right at the beginning of the Smithsonian magazine article, on page 126, we can see the rather famous photograph of concentration camp inmates at Buchenwald, one of whom who is claimed to be Elie Wiesel, "the chronicler of the holocaust". Unfortunately, Shnayerson did not mention that Wiesel wrote the following in one of his "chronicles" more than twenty years after the war:

Every Jew, somewhere in his being, should set apart a zone of hate - healthy, virile hate - for what the German personifies and for what persists in the German. To do otherwise would be a betrayal of the dead.

Legends of our Time, Avon, pb. Page 177/178

While the Buchenwald picture certainly seems horrible from the vantage point of today, it can in fact only be compared to something else that was happening at the very time when the ever so moral allied judges opened the Nuremberg trials: Hundreds of thousands or millions of German soldiers who were by then POWs of the Allies were lying in open fields, without any shelter against snow, rain or sun, and died a slow death from starvation and neglect. These Germans would have been happy to have such accommodations available as shown on the Buchenwald picture. Instead, they had been herded like cattle on open ranges, and there left to rot. I, myself, experienced such a stockade (for that was all it was) for a relatively short time, and but for the kindness of an American soldier I might either have succumbed like a million other German POWs (read James Bacque's book Other Losses), or ended up equally dead in a camp of America's Soviet ally in Siberia.

This fact and the equally criminal expulsion (generally after the war, i.e., at the very same time that the Allies sat in judgment over the German leaders) of approximately 15 million Germans from their ancestral homes beyond the Oder-Neisse line and the Sudetenland, with an associated loss of 3 million of the expellees killed, should forever prevent any judge from either the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France from participating in an international trial such as happened at Nuremberg. For Shnayerson to write of the "moral clarity that marked American idealism at the time" proves either a lack of knowledge as to what really happened, or it is a flagrant attempt to justify allied misbehavior five decades after the fact. Robert Snayerson also asserts that "Nuremberg" was "...the century's heroic attempt to achieve justice without vengeance...."

Justice without vengeance? If Germans of the post-World War II generation were to wish bad for the United States and its population, they would only have to wish that Americans were to experience exactly what the Germans had gone through from 1944 on for about twenty years at the hands of the ever so benign and humane allied powers. To claim that "the rule of law" was of paramount importance in the Nuremberg procedures, is absurd. It also shows the audacity with which Shnayerson went about as he wrote his essay. In conjunction with the Bitburg affair President Reagan spoke of the "guilt complex which has been imposed upon the Germans". What else was that (and the associated "re-education") but cruel vengeance, a vengeance that is still in force today.

"Nearly all (the accused, HS) were ready to acknowledge the horrific facts while cravenly assigning blame to others." Can one deny, after a horrible world war that for Germany had lasted six years, that many people, many innocents, had lost their lives? That at the end there was chaos and anarchy? That, as a result of terrorist (partisan) activities that had cost the lives of hundreds of thousands of German soldiers, stringent measures against civilian populations had to be taken, measures that only sometimes were as ferocious as was the allied bombing of German cities at the same time (and which cost the lives of many innocents)? I could go on. But it is doubtful that any of the German leaders acknowledged such horrific "facts" as gas chambers, a planned extermination of all Jews within the German realm, or soap made from Jewish cadavers because they were lies. However, it seems that is just what Shnayerson wants to imply.

"The defendants had been hanged messily..." Why "messily"? Who in the "free" world knows to what lengths the Americans went purposely in order to inflict pain and terror on the executed German leaders? After the hangings, the smashed and contorted faces of the eleven men provided proof of the "humanity" at work. Was Julius Streicher wrong when he spoke of the Second Purim festival being celebrated by Germany's enemies?

"The exercise of justice at Nuremberg reverberates across this century." Reading this sentence, one of the most recent instances of a definite crime against peace and innocents comes to mind: The deliberate murder of over 100 women and children at the UN refugee camp at Qana in Lebanon at the hands of the Israelis. If Nuremberg had meant a new beginning for international law and justice, certainly the Israeli commanders responsible for this massacre ought to have been called to account by now. That they weren't proves that Nuremberg was nothing else but one-sided victor revenge. Shnayerson's sentence is nothing but typically Jewish sophistry. One look at what happened since 1945, and how many crimes against humanity have since then been committed by the very nations that sat in judgment over the Germans shows that this second half of the century was probably the most murderous "peace time" in the history of mankind. Therefore, to praise "Nuremberg" and its follow-up now, is specious.

"In April 1944, two Jews escaped (from Auschwitz). They detailed Germany's technology of genocide, such as the camp's four new gas-and-burn machines, each designed to kill 2,000 prisoners at a time." In this conjunction Shnayerson forgot to mention Jan Karski's lime-filled railroad cars wherewith live Jews were slowly dissolved into some sort of human goo, or the huge electric plates that killed thousands of unfortunates at one stroke. Unfortunate for Shnayerson (but not for the Smithsonian magazine, we are sure) no sample of the "new gas-and-burn" machine exists anywhere but in fertile Jewish minds, and those bad revisionists naturally use this fact to question certain tenets of the holy Holocaust.

"Allied prisoners and kidnapped foreign workers were fed so little that as many as one third of them died...every week." The "Nazis" certainly must have been stupid to squander hard-to-come-by workers this way. However, we all know that they were consumed by hate, and not guided by high morality, as were the nations that eventually proved victorious. Oddly though, only about one percent of American and British POWs died while in German hands, far fewer than can be said of any other captives imprisoned by the large warring nations of World War II.

"The man asked (by FDR) to find (the answer as to how to punish the Germans) was Murray Bernays, a lawyer turned wartime Army colonel in the Pentagon." Shnayerson ought to have mentioned that Bernays was a Jew, as were the "refugees" in London who came up with the entire war crimes-to-be-punished concept. He ought to have been proud to mention these facts since they prove the so frequently invoked Jewish quest for justice and tolerance. "Bernays suggested putting Nazism and the entire Hitler era on trial as a giant criminal conspiracy." With this new concept the entire tradition of Western Civilization pertaining to laws of war was set aside, and replaced by Talmudic teachings. But who was better to sit in judgment of an alleged giant conspiracy than people who themselves never tire of conspiring against all others?

"On August 8, 1945,...the International Military Tribunal... declared aggressive war an international crime." According to the Smithsonian, Shnayerson is an expert on legal matters. One may assume that he had had legal training. A layman such as myself cannot help but notice with which ease this Jewish writer oversees the fact that this declaration by the IMT meant the imposition of ex post facto law. But, obviously, in the interests of Jewish revenge everything is kosher, so to say. As a German I have to ask the question what happened to the allied leaders that have waged aggressive war in World War II and ever since? Was Ronald Reagan put on trial for the American attack on Grenada, or Ariel Sharon for the 1982 Israeli "incursion" into Lebanon?

"The IMT charter was grounded in the idea that Nazism was a 26-year-long criminal conspiracy. Its aim: to build a war machine; to satisfy Hitler's psychopathic hatred of Jews and turn Europe into a German empire." This statement can perhaps best be answered by pointing out some facts of today: Temporarily at least (and seemingly to its own surprise) one nation that always professes peace, non-interference, democracy, justice and tolerance, seems to have gained world domination. It reached this pinnacle of power allegedly merely by happen-stance, not through an incredibly large war machine and a certain determination, and, again allegedly, without hatred of anybody (not even of nationalists who do not care for the New World Order.) If you guessed that I am writing of the United States, you are on the right track.

*"One especially incriminating find... was the notes of Hitler aide Col. Friedrich Hossbach from a meeting between Hitler (and others, HS) on November 5, 1937." This sentence reads so factual, so "know-it-all", and so genuine. Yet, the so-called Hossbach protocol was an allied deception, and in Europe at least there is not one serious historian who uses it as proof of "Nazi" villainy. This and the others of Shnayerson's statements permit the question whether the Smithsonian article writer (and those responsible for printing all this nonsense in their magazine) have read anything but supermarket tabloids since about 1960?*

"One German soldier's home movie depicted his comrades in Warsaw, clubbing and kicking naked Jews. In one scene, an officer helped a battered young woman to her feet so that she could be knocked down again. No doubt, such scenes bring emotions to a boil. Not only in America. But today we know that this "German soldier's home movie" had been manufactured in Hollywood (may I mention: by Jews!), as was the film "Todesmühlen" which showed similar nonsense but had to be seen by every adult German in the American zone before ration coupons could be received. Reading of this, the recent movie, "Schindler's List" comes to mind. Undoubtedly, its black-and-white scenes would in fifty years be depicted as the genuine article if, yes if, this sort of propaganda could go on.— Which I doubt!"

"Huge chunks of Jewish wealth wound up in Nazi pockets. Isn't it a fact that the allied theft of German wealth after 1918 came before the Third Reich? (In other words, the German WW I generation wasn't entirely unjustified in using the enemies' methods 20 years later.) Only recently, the Bayer Corp. of Germany paid one billion dollars to Americans just for the return of the trademark "Bayer Aspirin" that was stolen after the First World War. And, isn't the United States Government currently using a sophisticated type of international skulduggery in order to buy goods from all over the world with (really) worthless paper money printed by the billions?

"(Hitler) ordered new currency, largely backed by stolen Jewish property." Reading Jewish "Holocaust" articles such as this one (it fits into the genre), never ceases to amaze me. Having lived in the Third Reich I cannot recall a new currency being issued. The Reichsmark of the post-inflation era (1924) remained the currency until its replacement by the Deutsche mark in 1948. While the German Jews were undoubtedly wealthy, it is doubtful that they were so wealthy that a new currency could be based upon that fact. However, if we take Shnayerson's statement at face value, then the question may be asked how was it possible that the fewer than 600,000 Jews constituting less than one percent of the German population, could amass such wealth?

*"Hitler's suicidal decision...to invade the Soviet Union." Again we have to ask the question, "where has Shnayerson been in the last decade or so?" Few reputable historians in Germany and Russia still believe the tale that the German attack in June of 1941 was wholly unjustified. Had the Germans not invaded the Soviet Union then, and destroyed the huge Red Army geared for offense and ready to attack toward the West, then the Communists would have reached the French Atlantic coast by the fall of the same year. It was the sacrifice of the German soldier that prevented Europe from being overrun by Bolshevism.*

"Hitler's campaign to "Aryanize" Germany began with the...poisoning...of "garbage children." One must really wonder where people like Shnayerson get their information. Translated, the term "garbage children" would be "Müllkinder". I can unequivocally state that I have never come across this term in the German language, and knowing what words we used in World War II, I would say flatly that the accusation is nonsense. Yes, there was a Hitler-ordered euthanasia program whereby absolutely hopeless and extremely seriously ill and imbecilic people were mercy-killed after the war had started (in each instance, three doctors had to give their O.K.) but it stopped when a Catholic bishop brought the matter to the attention of the German people.

"The regime's contempt for non-Aryan life conditioned millions of Germans to turn a blind eye to more and more epidemic evils the death camps, the ghastly medical experiments, the relentless massacres of those Hitler called "Jews, Poles and similar trash." Reading this, Goldhagen's book about the German people (as a whole) being "Hitler's willing executioners" comes to mind. I cannot lose the feeling that both Goldhagen's book and Shnayerson's article are part of a greater Zionist scheme. Could it be that the Auschwitz gas chamber claim is now really untenable (just as the "four million Jews killed at Auschwitz"-figure had to be replaced by a number about one fourth smaller), and that a new scam had to be invented in order to keep the German (and American) tribute for Israel and World Jewry rolling?

Speaking of "millions of Germans being conditioned to turn a blind eye...": Which one of the world's larger nations has killed more than one million civilians in air raids on often undefended cities without one single human loss on its own mainland, and where, undoubtedly, the people turned a blind eye to the carnage caused by their own? And, which was worse, Dachau, Buchenwald and Auschwitz, or Eisenhower's Rheinwiesen stockades? Furthermore, were the American Blacks who without their permission were used for the (criminal) Syphilis experiments under the auspices of the American democracy better off than the concentration camp prisoners who suffered through (criminal) German medical experiments under the "Nazis"?. (By the way, what happened as recently as in the Gulf War to American soldiers who are now so sick?)

"A Czech doctor who spent four years at Dachau, where he performed 12,000 autopsies, told that he was ordered to strip the skin off bodies. It was cut into various sizes for the use as saddles, riding breeches, gloves, house slippers, and ladies handbags. Tattooed skin was especially valued by SS men'." Ah yes, and the skin of dead Jews was stronger and therefore more valuable than that of Aryans. Sometimes I really have the desire to keep on embellishing on such stories. Then perhaps I could sell the story to Steven Spielberg...who would embellish it some more, and a new docu-drama that may not be questioned could be preserved for posterity.

"(In 1939) Hitler's madness was almost beyond imagination, (when) he ordered the expulsion of nearly nine million Poles and Jews from areas annexed for his promised Nordic empire." Apart from the fact that the nine million expelled figure is totally unsupported by facts (the actual number of Polish expellees doesn't even come close..), no mention is made of the fact that twenty years earlier the Poles had driven one million Germans from their homes when Poland was re-established after 125 years. But if Hitler was mad in ordering this during the war, what can one say about FDR, Truman, Stalin and Churchill who ordered or supported the expulsion of 15 million Germans from their ancestral homes after the shooting had stopped?

"Ohlendorf (allegedly) gave the number of persons killed by the Einsatzgruppen, (whose main purpose was to keep terrorist (partisan) activities at a minimum, HS) at 90,000." That certainly seems horrible from the vantage point of today but not if one considers the German civilians murdered in the allied air raids: Hamburg more than 40,000, Dresden more than 250,000, little Pforzheim more than 20,000 in 20 minutes. How many civilians lost their lives in U.S. operations against the Viet Cong? Yes, I know, the latter were probably less legitimate fighters than were the (Jewish?) partisans of Eastern Europe: the V.C. battled "democracy", which is a crime."

"The prosecution rested after three months, capped off by another movie distilling more Nazi horror, and displays of macabre human-skin lampshades and shrunken heads submitted as evidence." I am glad Shnayerson mentioned this. It certainly underscores the type of trial the German leaders had to undergo. But --- could it be that one of the shrunken heads came alive again and is now being used on the body of an article writer or by one of his associates at the Smithsonian? Is there any Gentile alive who still believes the shrunken head and tattooed skin-for-lampshades stories? And, since these allied claims have long ago been quietly put to rest, what else is not true on the Holocaust story? Is one allowed to ask? Or, is the questioning of such nonsense a heresy against the new state religion, namely, the immutable Holocaust belief?

Pertaining to German war actions, Shnayerson quotes a French prosecutor, Francois de Menthon: "...all the instincts of barbarism, repressed by centuries of civilization, but always present in men's innermost nature." Was de Menthon thinking of the hundreds of thousands of German POWs starving at that very moment (1945) in French stockades? Or did he contemplate the mass rape of German women by French soldiers in Stuttgart, something that could never have happened in the German army. Under German occupation the treatment of ordinary citizens in France, Czechoslovakia, Poland and elsewhere was far more benign than the treatment the Arabs, the Algerians, the Vietnamese, the Africans, the Latvians and others experienced at the hands of the "Nuremberg" victors. And, who would like to trade places with the hapless Palestinians now?

"(German defense lawyers) managed to outflank the court's ban on tu quoque evidence—if I am guilty, you are, too—, a stricture aimed at keeping allied excesses out of the trial." Note that Shnayerson called allied war crimes only "excesses". Amazing for someone who specialized in legal matters. But that is par for the course for all Allies. If the Germans had shot the 20,000 Polish officers that fell into their hands, we wouldn't hear the end of it. But since an allied nation had done it with theirs, it is now rarely mentioned. In a letter to the editor of the Toronto Sun (9/28/96), the director of a prestigious institution writes of Canadian POWs (allegedly, HS) being executed by the Waffen-SS. Then he adds: "The hard-bitten Canadian vets can hardly be blamed for rarely giving (young soldiers of the "Hitlerjugend Division") a chance to surrender in combat afterwards." So easily one describes and justifies allied war crimes.

The court's ban on tu quoque defense was not the only ban under which German defense lawyers had to suffer. To this day "German" judges do not permit forensic evidence in so-called Holocaust or Auschwitz Lie trials! (Nuremberg is still with us!)

"In the spring of 1944, (Speer) ordered 100,000 Jewish slave workers from Hungary as casually as if they were bags of cement." Absolutely horrible, nicht wahr? Except for the fact that at the very same time hundreds of thousands of German POWs who had been brought to the United States, were "sold" to the French, where tens of thousands died from malnutrition or mistreatment. And, since the Germans were supposed to know everything that happened during the war within the German realm in spite of wartime restrictions, it is clear that the Nuremberg judges knew exactly what happened in these French death camps. Did they do something about it?

"The SS, the Gestapo, and the top Nazi leadership had been proved criminal, meaning that their members had voluntarily joined in committing war crimes after 1939. That left several million potential defendants for lower courts to handle." Regents of the Smithsonian, among whom are numerous persons connected with the present ruling hierarchy of the United States, ought to read this sentence carefully. Assume for a moment, Israel will soon use nuclear weapons against several of its perceived enemies, thereby opening up the Pandora's box that had been closed since Nagasaki. And assume further, this act were to unleash a horrible catastrophe costing tens of millions of lives. Undoubtedly, many people across the world would hold the Jews, the Zionists, and their supporters accountable. According to the Nuremberg principles would this not also include all Americans who, in word and deed, have supported the Jewish state since about 1965, when it became public knowledge that Israel possessed nuclear weapons, and since it became known that the Jewish state would not shirk from terrorism in the name of defense?

"By rejecting group guilt and mass purges, the 1945 judges defied hatred and struck a blow for peace that may yet, half a century later, help temper the madness of war." Reading this sentence I wonder whether Shnayerson and this writer are thinking of the same Germany, of the same war, and of the same Nuremberg trial and its consequences. What Shnayerson states as fact is most plainly a lie that can easily be exposed. May the United States never suffer from such a harsh peace as that imposed on Germany by the 1945 victors, and may this nation never suffer from the collective guilt complex, and the mass purges of its intelligentsia that has devastated Germany and the soul of the German people since the "liberation" on the 8th of May 1945.

On the day this letter is being written, the New York Times printed a short notice that the former Waffen-SS Captain Erich Priebke has to face a second trial in Rome for a war-related incident that took place in 1944. It suffices to state that at the time Priebke did not only act under highest orders but also within the confines of the laws of war then in existence. The fact that a honorable soldier can be brought to trial more than a half century after a war, proves how low Western Civilization has sunk. All the traditions of chivalry and justice established over the centuries by the great culture-creating nations like England, France, Italy, Spain and the German Reich have been set aside for the benefit of what we call Talmud justice: "Never forget, never forgive", and "An Eye for an Eye" are now paramount. Regretfully, the Smithsonian institution has permitted itself to be used in the furtherance of this tradition of lies, hate and vengeance.

Sincerely,
Hans Schmidt

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Corneliu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" — R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" — Dr. A.J. App. THE ANTI-HUMANS, Order #01013. A COURAGEOUS SHOUT

by

Charles E. Weber

The Tulsa World of 21 November published an item about an Aryan man, Mr. Dennis Mahon, who had the courage to protest against the genocidal measures being undertaken against his race. At a lecture by Morris Dees at the University of Tulsa Mr. Mahon shouted out challenges to Dees, head of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Mobile, Alabama, when he could no longer contain his anger at a point in Dees' lecture.

Dees told his collegian audience that whites would be a minority in the United States by 2015. Mr. Mahon was quoted as shouting at that point, "That is genocide." He continued to reproach Dees, shouting, "He is a phony, a liar. He has made $54 million... He is a millionaire," as quoted by the Tulsa World.

Mr. Mahon, of course, was justified in shouting out "genocide" at Dees (whose name, by the way, might be an Anglicized spelling of Dietz). The future of Aryans in the United States looks bleak indeed, for within a few decades Aryan Americans are now likely to become a badly abused minority in a country they painstakingly built out of a wilderness. A sobering fact is that only a small minority of Aryan Americans have thus far had the courage and cerebral energy to protest against what is being done to them or even to become aware of it in the first place. Aryan Americans should take a long look at South Africa and note what is now going on there, partly as a result of measures against the Aryan minority of South Africa undertaken by "their" government. Let us hope that the pain now being suffered by Aryans in South Africa will not be in vain and will serve as a rescuing admonishment to Aryan Americans.

The majority of members of the dispossessed majority in the United States have thus far not had the courage and energy even just to give much thought to their plight, let alone to do something about it. They allowed elements of the media, especially of the electronic media, that are hostile to them to corrupt and debilitate their thinking on racial questions and to weaken their pride in their race, without which no race or nation can prosper and survive. Some Aryan Americans have even played an active role in darkening their own future by making donations to shrewd men such as Dees or having their fetuses killed in such great numbers that their population is declining in relation to the non-Aryan population that is now engulfing them. During this century they have permitted cunning, ruthless politicians to involve them in costly wars by which priceless, good Aryan blood-lines were lost forever. They have permitted their tax-supported schools—from kindergarten to graduate colleges—to become instruments of indoctrination against their own welfare. They have listened to and voted for adept racial traitors like the Clintons, who have a pathological hostility to the more successful members of their own race. A slightly consoling thought is that Clinton got only 49% of the popular vote.

Recently I watched on television a shrewd little Jew repeatedly jab the chief officer of one of the largest corporations in the United States because it was alleged that some of his fellow corporation officers made humorous mention of a race generally hostile to Aryan Americans. This spineless Aryan humbled his firm in a manner that was almost beyond belief. He moaned that a great wrong had been committed for which the involved high-ranking officers of his corporation should be severely punished. He thus betrayed not only his fellow officers, but also members of his race who work for the corporation that are thus likely to become just more victims of the euphemistically termed "Affirmative Action." He also betrayed his stockholders when his corporation subsequently made huge donations to its Negro employees. His corporation gave in to threats of boycott of its products by Negroes. Such a boycott might well have taken place to some extent no matter how much of the earnings of the corporation were thrown away and thus denied to those who had invested in the corporation and trusted its officers with their savings.

In spite of such disturbing developments Aryan American who are courageous, mentally alert and loyal to their race must never entertain the thought that their defeat is inevitable. Such thinking would only guarantee their paralysis and hence defeat. Perhaps even after this late date there will be a sufficient number of Aryan Americans who will come to realize how grim their future will be if they do not act courageously and with a willingness to sacrifice, to sacrifice even their careers if necessary. □

Dear Sir:

Just for the record: Somewhere down the long line of transmission, a mistake has been made, and it appears on p. 12, l. 8,9 of Liberty Bell, November 1996.

James Fenimore Cooper did not write Drums Along the Mohawk, though I believe that he would have been delighted had he accomplished that feat. That very great American classic was authored by Walter D. Edmonds, an exceptionally fine talent apparently much overlooked.

Drums Along the Mohawk should be read by every American Aryan who values his national heritage. The kind of courage it portrays we will need increasingly in the days to come.

Sincerely, P.R., Montana

Dear Liberty Bell,

I just finished reading "The Awakening" by Eric Thomson in L.B. November '96. That is a very fine short story. I am trying to remember what a short story with a surprise ending is called in English lit, but anyway it is a fantasy and a darn good one! A great idea in fact!

It is a bit messy for today's world; we might accomplish the same ideal with sharpshooters, elite guerilla forces, or Navy (Viking) Frogmen type personnel.

That is a thrilling story that will do more for the morale of white nationalists than anything I have come across yet! Carry on!

"The Gift of the Magi" was such a story with a surprise ending.

In this offering by Thomson, I felt the power of Thor when he appeared naked with his Hammer. Saki or H.H. Munro wrote bizarre and witty stories, but I'm not sure he is the one.

Anyhow, let us begin these wonderful ideas at once. Who will be Thor? There are too many of these worms to carry out this ritual in this way. More like a poisoned needle in the subway or at the opera. Jolnir at the opera. Jolnir at the bank—that is where the incubus (or incubi?) Hide out. One could do away with a considerable number at the N.Y. Stock Exchange. Could they all be taken to Valhalla? Perhaps to Antarctica?

Give us more of this man Thomson!

Dear Mr. Dietz:

Thank you very much for sending the Liberty Bell issue containing my People of Thule. It fitted right in with the two articles by Eric Thomson and William Pierce. I suppose Bruce's article on the origin and religion of the Aryan race [see "Our People, the Aryans" in this issue] will come in the next issue. My original choice for the title was "The People of Shem" but some of my friends took exception to it because of the religious connotation. I had just read R.L. Hoskin's booklet, The Sheep and the Wolves and it seemed appropriate, particularly since the Whites of South Africa were preparing to enter the Wolf Dens voluntarily. Stupid idiots. I enjoyed Mr. Pierce's article very much, but I was especially pleased with the leading article on American Education during the past forty years. I think that might have been stretched to fifty years because when I started my teaching career in 1930 it had already made significant progress in New York State. I taught English in a small rural school in northern New York and the Progressive Educators from Albany were already invading our schools and redesigning the system in line with the Protocols of the Elders of Zion. Our local Supervisor was not a Jew but he fell for the indoctrination of educational twaddle like a hooked salmon. Fortunately we had a wonderful principal, an old-fashioned, dedicated educator, who blocked the door and stood four-square in defense of his teachers. But the pressure to change the old methods of learning, and turn education into frivolous entertainment became overwhelming, and when the opportunity to become the editor of a small weekly newspaper came along, I grabbed it and abandoned the teaching profession for good. And never regretted it...

By the way, is the resignation of the majority of Clinton's cabinet a case of the rats leaving the sinking ship? A gigantic economic collapse must be arranged before they can drag us into the New World Order. Perhaps the REAL Holocaust is closer than we think. Perhaps I'll live long enough, after all, to see the outcome of this age-old struggle for power.

Very sincerely yours,
Mrs. Lee Norris, California

Gentlemen :

If you can possibly see your way to do it, would you please run the announcement below in your organ as soon as possible. The lawyers are working on it and the bills are running up. Over the last few years I have given thousands of dollars to various causes like this but I am running out of money and my medical bills are overwhelming me. I can't do much more.

HELP YORIE KAHL

In 1983 Yorie Kahl and his father Gordon were leaving a meeting. Gordon was wanted on a misdemeanor regarding a tax case. Federal marshals ambushed them and severely wounded Yorie, almost killing him. Gordon returned fire and killed two marshals and wounded two others. Yorie was given a Kangaroo trial and has been in prison for 13 years. Attorney John DeCamp and others are trying to get Yorie a new trial and this costs money. Please send contributions to his mother, Joan Kahl Britton, Apt 251, 3564 Windrift Way, Oceanside, CA 92056.

Thanks and God bless you.

Dear Editor,

Well folks, we have had another long drawn-out, manipulated election. About fifty percent of the voters stayed home. Ten percent went to the Third Parties, while the rest went to the Dole-Clinton tickets. No way to prove the number of stolen votes. We need to go back to the paper ballots soon as we get our freedom back.

After the International bankers took over our money system in 1913, they began a slow process of teaching us about the "American Dream" by way of movies, T.V. and other media propaganda. We learned to accept bribes from the people we elected to take care of our business, while using our own money to do it. They were manipulated into playing the part of "Sheep-Herders" driving us "Sheeple" into the NEW WORLD ORDER of Communism.

Many officials in Congress and Senate are resigning, seeing what's ahead. Some are blowing the whistle on scandals that have been kept out of the news. One of these gentlemen has remarked, "If the general public understood who controls our Government and the plans they have for us, there would be a revolution before morning." If I had known all this back in the thirties, I would have picked my own dam cotton, if I had had any.

Bring our boys back home and put the women back in the house home-schooling their youngens, before it's too late.

Sincerely,
Gene Trapnell, Georgia

Dear Editor:

Newly released tapes show that President Nixon ordered a break-in to recover the Pentagon Papers stolen by Daniel Ellsberg, papers that Mr. Nixon believed were at the Brookings Institute in Washington.

During the Vietnam War when the news media's bible, the Washington Post, said there were six-hundred and twelve thousand Americans in combat, Ellsberg stole 47 volumes of TOP SECRET military documents—over sixty pounds of documents!

The break-in never happened, had President Nixon been able to seize the stolen documents, or stop Ellsberg, I know for certain—at the very least—he would have saved the lives of all our POWs in Laos.

When I flew the so-called "Ho Chi Minh Trail" in Laos as a Forward Air Controller with the Air Commando in 1967 and 1968, we knew that there were at least 300 POWs being held by the Pathet Lao. And the PL admitted as much. At the time of the POW release in 1973, there should have been at least 400 POWs from Laos. The North Vietnamese released nine POWs, claiming they were all the POWs held by their counterparts in Laos, the Pathet Lao,

It wasn't true, these men had been held by the NVA (North Vietnamese Army) and not the PL. It was an effort by the North Vietnamese to try and produce some POWs from Laos because all the POWs in Laos had been butchered in 1972—thanks to Ellsberg and the Pentagon Papers.

Prior to the release of the "papers," the PL claimed that all Americans they held were "war criminals" and they could therefore deny the International Red Cross access to them. With the release of the Pentagon Papers documenting TOP SECRET covert "insertions" of Army Special Forces road watch teams into Laos, the PL changed their minds and now claimed that these TOP SECRET documents proved that all Americans were now "spies" and could be executed.

In the blood bath that followed, even French nuns who had been born in Laos had to run for their lives or they would have been butchered by the Pathet Lao as "American spies."

President Nixon was condemned by the news media for trying to stop them from passing TOP SECRET military information to the enemy during a war. President Nixon was condemned by the Democrats for trying to save the lives of Americans the Democrats had sent into the war under two Democrat presidents. President Nixon was to be "impeached and imprisoned" under a charge by Peter Rodino and the House Judiciary Committee, for infringing on the "civil rights" of Daniel Ellsberg, by trying to stop him from passing information to the enemy during a war.

The United States, the world's first and oldest Constitutional Republic is DEAD!

Sincerely,
Joseph G. Stano, New Jersey

Dear Mr. Dietz:

...I thoroughly enjoyed the December issue of LB, and as usual, agreed with all of it. I liked Dr. Pierce's article on the John Birch Society. I have been reading The New American recently and noted that they have become more aggressively patriotic during the past few months, but they still tiptoe very tenderly around Jewish feelings. They resemble New England Old Maids at a tea party when it comes to dealing with the Conspiracy. They have become more aggressive in their reporting but they still shrink from the thought of violence or an early American-style revolution. They continue to rely on education and the ballot box. And yet they admit that the whites are being outvoted by the hordes of blacks and alienation that have been swarming into the country under our lax immigration policy—again due to pressure from the Jews.

I sympathize with Mr. Kelly's experience with Jewish media control. The Jews are like the Blacks. They go all out for vulnerable targets. In South Africa the Blacks hit isolated farms (unless there was a man there with a gun). Three terrorists invaded us one night. They knew that we were three old women without a male guard. My friend got her hands on a gun and simply pointed it at them, and they scampered, all three of them. After that we put our guns under our pillows.

South Africa is literally falling to pieces. Too bad. They could have led the world back to sanity if there had been a leader like Verwoerd or Malan in charge. My husband and I were counting on it. That final collapse was a deadly mixture of cowardice and stupidity—and treachery within their own ranks. I trust Americans don't fall into the same snake pit.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Lee Norris, California

Dear Mr. Dietz:

This may be considered a Letter to the Editor.

Just a couple notes on some recent numbers of Liberty

50 — Liberty Bell / February 1997.

Bell.

Thank you for carrying, in your August 1996 issue, Jeremy Miller's series The New Slavery which originally appeared on American Dissident Voices (a radio program I produce); but you repeated the innocent error of the editor of Free Speech in giving me the primary credit. In fact, my function was merely to edit the Miller articles for clarity and to fit the time constraints of my radio program. The main credit should go -- and the byline should have been given -- to Mr. Jeremy Miller.

In your December 1996 issue, you published an article by Jack Killey entitled "Jewish Media Control Close Up," which indicated at its termination, "Thanks to Kevin Alfred Strom for providing the above article...." and that it was "Reprinted from Resistance #88, published by NSWPP, PO Box 9444, 27515.

Although I am delighted that Mr. Killey's article was seen by readers of Liberty Bell, I feel obligated to inform your readers of the false impression that the publisher of the "Resistance" sheet, Harold Covington, may have given them. (Do not confuse Harold Covington's "Resistance" operation in North Carolina with the excellent pro-White music magazine of the same name published in Detroit, Michigan. It is Covington's North Carolina-based "Resistance" sheet to which I refer at all times in this letter.)

First, "Resistance" plagiarized the article from National Vanguard Books, pure and simple. Mr. Killey, the author of the piece, contacted me some months ago, looking for a publisher. Believing his was a story that needed to be told, I first published his article on my radio program, and later in print and on the Internet. The publisher of "Resistance" did not contact Mr. Killey, did not contact me, and did not contact National Vanguard Books before lifting the article whole and republishing it under his imprimatur. This is dishonorable enough, but there is more.

Secondly, the publisher of "Resistance" has the audacity to state that I submitted the article to him and gave him permission to republish it. I did no such thing. He further implies that I gave him permission to use my name, which I did not. By using my name as quoted above, Mr. Covington leaves the reader to infer that I am in at least some small way associated with or cooperating with his so-called "NSWPP." I most emphatically state that I have no association whatever with Mr. Covington or his various operations, nor have I ever had any such association, nor do I ever intend to have such an association.

Finally, as if to thumb his nose at those whose work he has appropriated for his own benefit, Mr. Covington altered the text of the article in at least one very significant way:

On page 52 of the December 1996 issue of Liberty Bell, the text from Covington's version of the article reads, "It was in one sense a privilege to be in courageous company living and dead; to be allocated the ire bestowed on men like Belloc, Chesterton, Douglas Reed, Wilmot Robertson was a badge of honor of sorts."

The same passage in Jack Killey's actual words reads, "...the ire bestowed on people like Belloc, Chesterton, Dr. Pierce, Douglas Reed, Wilmot Robertson was a badge of honor of sorts. "

Thank you, George, for all your unselfish work and your multiple kindnesses to me and my family, and thank you for the opportunity to set the record straight on this matter. Let me make it clear that you and the Liberty Bell are absolutely blameless in all this. If readers want further information, they may contact me through the address below.

With best wishes to you and yours, I remain

Yours faithfully,
Kevin Alfred Strom.

Dear Mr. Dietz and Fellow Readers,
The lament over Clinton's re-election to the Presidency was predictable. No, P.R. of Oregon, it was not the mush-headed "soccer moms" who re-elected the Great Liar. Even soccer moms are not that stupid, no matter how Rush Limbaugh spins it. Let's look elsewhere.

I have recommended the book VOTESCAM to many people, even Limbaugh. As usual, no one listens; no one reads the book; the ignorance remains. Since you probably will not go out and spend $9.95 for this book, let me tell you in few words what you would learn by reading it. James M. Collier and his brother Kenneth F. Collier began an investigation of vote fraud going back to 1963. During these three decades, the American vote has been subject to government-sponsored electronic theft.

The authors assert, and back it up with twenty years of daring reporting, "...that your vote may now be a meaningless bit of energy directed by pre-programmed computers -- which can be fixed to select certain pre-ordained candidates and leave no footprints or paper trail. In short, computers are covertly stealing your vote." Thus, the subtitle of this book; The Stealing of America. Your chances at a Las Vegas casino are far greater than having your vote counted correctly.

The research of these two brothers covers twenty years. Such persistence!! They may still be researching had they not met Mae Brussell. Brussell was cited in Jonathan Vankin's book, Conspiracies, Coverups, & Crimes: Political manipulation and mind control in America. In his book, Vankin gives dignity to citizens who look for answers in places where the mass media refuses (or are forbidden-JC) to go. Vankin said that Mae Brussell was the "best engaged mind" of all the theorists. She was a brilliant researcher and probably the only person to cross-reference the 26 volumes of jumbled, non-indexed Warren Commission files. Mae had "gone on the air" and said the CIA, the FBI and the Mafia conspired to kill President John F. Kennedy.

Ken Collier appeared on a San Jose, California radio talk show while investigating that area for evidence of vote fraud. After listening to Ken's accounting of the votescam investigation, Mae Brussell couldn't resist the urge to call him (Ken) on the air. "Mae told Ken that the roots of vote fraud were to be found in Dallas that only there would we discover the truth behind the 'front gunman theory.'

"Mae said that the media had done a trade-off immediately after the shooting in Dallas. The television networks and the major press agreed to go along with the Warren Commission, stifling any impulses to investigate the truth about a front gunman -- IN RETURN FOR CONTROL OF THE VOTE COUNT"

The deal was made! The Jew-controlled United States Government (including the CIA, the FBI and the Mafia) made a deal with the Jew-controlled media. The Government said, "If you don't tell what we did (in Dallas), we'll give you control of the vote count in elections nation-wide." Apparently it was a good deal for both. The Warren Commission was a white-wash of the Kennedy assassination, and 33 years later, the media -- through votescam -- have only their choices of people in political office, most especially the one in the White House.

If the book VOTESCAM by the Collier brothers is not convincing enough, I direct your attention to the Jew-owned Wall Street Journal. The Journal printed the article by Jack Anderson (columnist for Newspaper Enterprise Association), "modern Vote Fraud's Undetectable." In the article, Anderson recounts a voting machine fraud in Jefferson Parish, La. He tells of Eva Waskell of Reston, Va. who has studied vote fraud for more than a decade. She says, "The election industry is virtually unregulated." Does this not smack of the government/media deal at Dallas? What's the WSJ's angle in printing this article? They know they are masters of White mind control and can say, and get away with, anything they choose.

As for Mae Brussell's "front gunman theory" at Dallas, a video is now available from The Spotlight: THE MURDER

OF JFK - Confession of an Assassin - The actual chilling confession of James E. Files taped at Joliet State Penitentiary - "I hit him from the front... I was one of two men."

Is Files telling the truth? It's up for you to decide. Files said that he was involved in joint CIA-mob operations that led to the assassination of President Kennedy. If Mae Brussell were still alive, I'm sure she would believe Files. After all, someone shot Kennedy from the front; why not Files?

The need in America is not to vote. The need is to rid America of the Disease. Your vote is gone; your freedom is gone; your money is gone; your government is gone; your culture is gone because the Disease denied you a choice when they stole your vote 33 years ago. America, and you, are destitute. The only thing you have left is your anger.

Happy New Year,
Jarrah B. Crawford, Tennessee

Dear Sir,

I wish you understood that the loss of your Christian tradition to the Jewish racial Darwin trick is what has ruined our civilization.

Sincerely, D.L., New York

Dear George,

Enclosed is my subscription renewal money...

I'll be going back to Australia perhaps one last time. What a wonderful country with such polite, intelligent people! They all are much better informed about America than we are. They take being well informed in stride--as simply part of life while Americans tend to hide from knowledge and the exchange of ideas as too burdensome to deal with.

We can blame the Jews but they have simply taken advantage of a greedy, intellectually lazy populace. I believe many Americans would shoot their own mother if so instructed by the government.

Keep plugging away anyway, George--you just might make a difference.

Sincerely, M.B., Oregon

THE ANTI-HUMANS

by D. Bacu (307 pp., hb.) describes what was done to the young men whom Corneliu Z. Codreanu, the founder of the Legionary Movement in Romania, inspired, when seven years after his brutal murder, Romania was delivered to the Bolsheviks. They were subjected to what is the most fully documented Pavlovian experiment on a large number of human beings. It is likely that the same techniques were used on many American prisoners in Korea and Vietnam. The Anti-Humans is a well-written document of great historical and psychological importance. Reading it will be an emotional experience you will not forget. "A sequel to Orwell's 1984" —R.S.H. "A searing exposé of Red bestiality!" —Dr. A.J. App). THE ANTI-HUMANS, Order #01013. Sale priced, single copy $2.00 + $1.50 postage, 10 for $15.00 + $5.00 postage.

DOES THE WEST HAVE THE WILL TO SURVIVE?

That is the obvious question posed by Jean Raspail's terrifying novel of the swamping of the White world by an unlimited flood of non-White "refugees." But there is also a less obvious and even more fundamental question: Must Whites find their way to a new Morality and a new spirituality in order to face the moral challenges of the present and overcome them? THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS is the most frightening book you will ever read. It is frightening because it is utterly believable. The armada of refugee ships in Raspail's story is exactly like the one that dumped 150,000 Cubans from Fidel Castro's prisons and insane asylums on our shores in 1980 — except this time the armada is from India, with more than 70 times as large a population. And it is only the first armada of many. If any book will awaken White Americans to the danger they face from uncontrolled immigration, it is THE CAMP OF THE SAINTS.
